1. Chapter 1

Boy Hunter.

I'm not a hero or a criminal sometimes I don't even think I'm human but what I do is something I can't tell anyone because if I did the people I love would die.

My name is Sam Tylor I'm fifteen years old by day I'm a school boy but at night I'm Boy Hunter and this is my story.

I live with my father well when I say my father I's just really me and the staff he goes away and works a lot and expects me to be taken care of by those he employs but what he doesn't know about me won't hurt him.

My father taught me from a young age practically since I was born in multiple martial arts and weaponry in so many ways I can't count I live on a small island owned by father known as the Camelot isles!

Due to the way I was brought it brought me great physical and mental strength but it also brought a certain amount of fear of my father as he knew all my moves and that wasn't all he knew me more then I know myself.

Sitting down at the dining table in the biggest condo on the island I sit staring into a full now cold mug of coffee just thinking just staring into a hot beverage thinking of a time where I actually saw my father but that wasn't for long time until now.

2. Chapter 2

Chapter 2

Still sitting there for another hour Sam is just speechless until he senses someone near him he had sent all the staff out to collect a few things and out of nowhere where his letter opener lies next to him where he often left it Sam throws it in the direction where he senses the person!

But the letter knife was caught by the right hand of Malcolm both the father of the late Tommy and the recently discovered Thea.

"Now is that a way to treat your father" Said Malcolm with the knife in his hand leaning over the balcony type fence at the top floor of the condo looking down at his son Sam

"Father the condo is secure the staff have been sent out for a few hours" Replies his son

"Good and now it's time to train" Said Malcolm who jumps off the first floor to the ground floor and faces his son with his swords he typically used and his son with ease avoided those attacks runs up to a wall and jumps up and pulls off two Tactical tonfas similar to those the police used but better made

Sam then began his counter attack in a very effective way until his father caught him off guard and knocks him to the ground and disarms with ease!

"Never the use the same moves more than twice" Said Malcolm

"Yes father sorry father" Said Sam then his father pulls his son off the ground

"You haven't trained as much since I left" Said Malcolm

"I know papa" Said Sam

"Why"? Asks Malcolm

"Well I was wondering if I could go to school" Said Sam to his father

"What about your home schooling" Said Malcolm

"I've been home schooled for fourteen almost fifteen years I just want to see how it is to feel normal" Said Sam

"Like" Said Malcolm

"Tommy" Said Sam

"Very well along as you keep up with your training" Replied Malcolm

3. Chapter 3

Chapter 3

Today was Sam's first day at his first school in his life and he was nervous like he was about to fight the heir to the demon which for all those who aren't assassins it's like some people missing the bus!

Now arriving at the school Sam leaves the limo with his father still inside and watches his dad driving off and then approached by some over excited annoying boy who takes a selfie with him.

"What was that" Said Sam

"You laugh about it someday" Said the boy walking away

"I break your neck someday too" Said Sam who then enters the halls of the school

School was world Sam doesn't understand he kept getting into trouble for random reasons like going to the toilet without permission.

The other things he got into trouble was for refusing to stand up to the principle which in school wasn't okay.

Now back at home we find Sam once again training uses his Tactical tonfas on a few manikins.

Sam first day was hard on him in a way he didn't expect and he didn't do well with people I suggest his father did this to him by isolating him in the way he did.

Sam knew his brother went to school at his age but Tommy had a different kind of spark he was outgoing and fun Sam is just obedient and wanting to for fill his father wishes.

While Tommy knew his mother Sam never did he just got told her name was Amanda Hollis a relation to someone important in Starling city but let's not get to that.
